THURSDAY MORNING, FEB. 25, 1864.

Vainly Borrowing Trouble.

The Albany Democrat pretends that the resolution reported to have been introduced by Mr. Harding, has thrown consternation into the Union camp, and is likely to cause terrible disaffection. Don't be alarmed, Mr. Democrat, the resolution was not offered, and if it had been, it would not have ruffled a feather on the plume of patriotic men.

It also states that the policy to be pursued by the Union party in those counties where there is any doubt of their strength to carry the coming election, will be to give renegade Democrats (who are threatening to return to their first love) the most lucrative offices. In this county (Linn) the policy has been fixed upon by the Blacks, and two weak-backed Democrats docketed for the two most desirable offices in the county, and as fast as Black Republican aspirants for the positions make their appearance, their claims are "confiscated" and themselves laid upon the shelf. We believe this to be an atrocious—no such thing, with every county in the State. In Linn particularly, the friends of the Union cause are not mere "policy" men, who will be willing to support any candidates for any official position, whose fidelity is so frail that it requires to be bought. They will not jeopardize great and vital principles by trade, to secure floating votes. The day for that sort of policy has gone by, and the cause which they and all patriotic men are engaged, admits of no compromise with time-serving or "weak-kneed" politicians. The battle cry is for freedom, as an effective means of crushing the rebellion, and as a just and righteous end to be gained, by the terrible sufferings which the country has been obliged to bear and by the patriotism of the Nation. This end will surely be accomplished, and it will be gained by a straight forward and decided course of policy and by discarding every thing which is not true and faithful beyond a peradventure. The people are determined that there shall now be no false issues, and no misconception of the real one. The Democrat may, therefore, cease its insinuations against the loyal citizens of its own county.

We know they are utterly without foundation, and that the coming canvass will satisfy every voter beyond a doubt, as to the question on which his judgment is to decide. Right will be square and decided between patriotism and treason. The line will be drawn so distinctly, that no man can be deceived, and if any one cannot fully, frankly, and with all his heart, support the Government in all its measures for the effective prosecution of the war, he cannot blame loyal men for regarding him as a traitor. If that pursues its present course, when it cannot see and know that its action and that of the party which it represents, gives aid and satisfaction to the rebel leaders, it ought not complain that it is deemed treasonable, and unfriendly and unfaithful to the king of the country.

LOYAL LEAGUES.—A peace paper up the Valley is greatly disturbed about the 'Leagues,' and calls them "the remnant of the now de' Know Nothing party." What the leagues we don't exactly understand, but if it's anything worse than the "Golden Circle," we believe is a corrupt remnant of the ancient Democratic party, it is a very mischievous thing. The "Golden Circle" is in the interest of the conspirators at Richmond—the headquarters of the institution. Its purpose is to destroy the Union, and to build upon its ruins a despotism based on the ruins of such secret societies to find fault with loyal men, whose only object is the salvation of the country from the power of treason and the vile conspiracies of rebels.

A REBEL PRISONER'S LOVE-LETTER.—The following epistle of love goes to prove the fact that the schoolmasters have long been abroad in the state of Alabama:

"My dear Sely Speers: I take mi pen in han' to let you no that our boys are all well. I hav' bin sick with the dyarear, an' hope you an' yore mother air enjoin the same blessin. Bill Shorter got a letter from nokie Jobis, an' he sed that now was goin' to git married to that gurle for nuthin' whisky drinkin' Sam barber. Now, Sely; I heap that air alot nice for you no and I no that we hav' lurd together wunst, an' when you told me to jin the rebil's I gave yore word I'se no bodydy els. That that aint far; I'se dun mose for mi hunty nor Sam barber an' if you bakum the wyfe of Sam the nare Miss hawkins, an' then—that's quits the matter. rite to me an tel me if this is true. Our forces will be done your way sune, an' I will add an' sen yore mother, till then farwel.

"Yores til the war is over. ASA HENDRIX.

"Asa was taken in before he had a chance to mail his billy doo."

A young American Democrat went recently to Rome to study for the priesthood in the Propaganda. He began his first letter from the Eternal City as follows:

"The first thing which forcibly attracted my attention here was the discovery that the Prefect of the place in which I am placed is a nigger."

Poor fellow! how the nigger is to be pitied who is obliged to teach such a Democrat.

QUOTING SCRIPTURE.—The remark that none but "Conservative" members of the Cabinet had accompanied the President to Gettysburgh—the radicals having remained behind—drew out this gruff reply from United States Treasurer Spinner, whose elaborate signature is seen on the green backs: "There's blessed good scripture for that—'Let the dead bury their dead.'"

HOW TO GET RID OF SLAVERY.—In the House of Representatives, on the 6th January, Mr. Arnold of Illinois, spoke of the destruction of slavery as necessary to the restoration of National unity and the salvation of the country. He gave a history of the aggressions of slavery since the organization of the Government, described the struggle of freedom and slavery at the ballot box, resulting in the triumph of freedom and the election of Lincoln. Slavery appealed to the sword, and brought upon this country this bloody war and all its evils. Previous to this, slavery ruled the nation; it held the purse and the sword—a knight at the White House, a despot in the Senate, and a bully and a tyrant everywhere. It had revolutionized the Government. After impeaching slavery as the cause of every evil from which the country is suffering, he demanded the judgment of Congress and the people whether it shall longer live. Peace is attainable only through its destruction. Down with slavery, the traitor, should be the motto of every loyal citizen. How shall slavery be destroyed? First, in the border loyal States, by the action of the States themselves carrying out immediate emancipation. Secondly, in all the Territories in rebellion, slavery having been substantially abolished by the Emancipation Proclamation, extend, confirm, and carry out that to all rebel territory. Thirdly, amend the Constitution by prohibiting the re-establishment or existence of slavery throughout the nation. Arnold spoke of the President, his late proclamation and services, saying he would live in history as the restorer of the Union and emancipator of his country. Time had always vindicated the wisdom of his policy. This Emancipation Proclamation has secured to us victory at home and friends abroad. The devil has no bribe big enough to tempt Abraham Lincoln. He is a diamond in the rough—a radical whose aim is to do the greatest possible good with the least possible harm. It is his great mission to carry out the regeneration of the country by the death of American slavery. Let him finish the job.

HENRY WARD BEECHER AND THURLOW WEED.—A Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says that Henry Ward Beecher went to Europe in consequence of the sneers of Thurlow Weed had boasted on his return from Europe that he obtained the suppression, in the speech of Napoleon to his Chambers, of a passage recommending mediation in American affairs. It, however, turned out afterward that he had merely bribed, with a large sum, a private secretary of Napoleon, a noted diner and roue, to suppress such a supposed paragraph in the speech, upon his declaration that it was to be inserted. But this man's declaration subsequently proved to be the coinage of his brain. Seeing what little good Weed had done, and smarting under his attacks in the paper, Beecher determined to try his hand. The result is before the world. He addressed himself to the religious element, the moral element, and the commercial element of British society, and accomplished more in a couple of weeks than Weed would have done in the course of his natural life.

THE CATHOLIC TELEGRAPH ON PRO-SLAVERY RIGHTS.—We clip the following from The Catholic Telegraph of December 24th:

It seems that there is a Priest in Kentucky who is still holding forth in favor of slavery! He ought to hide in the Mammoth Cave and associate with the fossils. Let him be careful in concealing his name, by signing himself "Priest" he divides the odium of his pro-slavery work with all his brethren, for which many, even in Kentucky, do not thank him, but the weight of public censure, if concentrated on his own patronymic, would be overwhelming. A Catholic Priest, in the holy times of Christmas, advocating slavery! Handing over women and children into infamious bondage with one hand and offering incense with the other to the infant Saviour—the Redeemer of all! What a subject for meditation before the altar on Christmas morning. If slavery must have its advocates, let them be found amongst the Priests. They whose special duty it is teach the observance of the law of God should not advocate a system by which the law is violated. A Catholic Priest upholding a system which ignores the sacrament of marriage! Shame

EFFECTS OF THE UNION RULE IN NEW ORLEANS.—The Crescent City is looking up at last. She had been crushed into the dust under the rule of the rebels, her prosperity vanished, and the place seemed doomed to utter decay. Fortunately we captured the city, and now it resumes its wonted appearance. The journals published in New Orleans have been the barometers indicating the state of the city. But a short time since they were published on quarter sheets of brown paper; they contained no advertisements, and were meager, poor, and devoid of spirit. Now these journals come to us with supplements, are printed on fine white paper, contain many columns of advertisements, and letters thence contain long accounts of the magnificent soirees of Mrs. General Banks, and the flourishing state of public amusements in the city. All this but proves that the whole South might speedily recover from its present state of poverty and confusion, if, like New Orleans, it might have the good fortune to come back at once under the fostering care of Uncle Sam.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE GOD OF THE SOUTH.—That isn't a bad idea of the Southern father, writing to his son in the rebel army,—in which he says, "I thought I would bring my letter to a close By saing look to the god of hevain, But hee's gorn north, so wee must depend on the god of the south Jef. daves."

With no God but Jeff. Davis to look to, the cause of the South must be past praying for.

HURRAH!—The author of the following evidently "lost his grip," over the news from Grant:

Hurrah for Ulysses, the bravest, the best!
Hurrah for the heroes, the men of the West!
Hurrah for the Hoosier! Hurrah for the Buckeye!
Hurrah for the Badger! Hurrah for Kentucky!
Hurrah for the Yankee, Scotch, Irish and Germ—!
Hurrah for old Hooker, and Thomas, and Sherman!
(You of course never drink, but now take some—Daddy)
Hurrah everybody for e-v-e-r-y-b-o-d-y.

Letter from Eugene City.

EUGENE CITY, Feb. 20, 1864.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Having just risen from a perusal of Gov. Seymour's Message, I was so impressed with the importance of his suggestions on one topic especially, that I feel inclined to transfer the same to your columns for the consideration of future law-makers here. A system of punishment for convicted criminals which shall be reformatory has long been a desideratum everywhere, and Oregon has experimented in the same direction with but indifferent success thus far.

It seems that convicts in New York can, by good behavior, shorten the term of their imprisonment twenty-four days in each year. Gov. Seymour says, "I advise an extension of this system. It should be so graduated that it will give more encouragement to convicts sentenced for long terms. Those who behave well for many years give stronger evidences of reformation than can be shown by those confined for shorter periods. An allowance for good conduct should be made of one month on each of the first two years, of two months on each succeeding year to the fifth year, of three months on each following year to the tenth year and of four months on each year remaining of their terms. Under this system a person sentenced for five years can reduce his term to four years and four months, those for ten years to eight years and one month, and those for fifteen years to eleven years and two months. This will be humane and wise. It will encourage hope and form habits essential to reformation. It will not unduly shorten the terms of imprisonment as it will be taken into account by our courts in making sentence. It will improve the discipline of prisons and save the necessity for degrading punishments. It will diminish the number of pardons, which are always attended with great evils, and, finally, it will return the convict to society with such proofs of good character as will give him self-respect and the confidence of his neighbors. I earnestly urge the subject upon the attention of the Legislature." I refrain from further comment but would be glad to see the idea duly considered in this latitude.

Today we are having the first rain of this month and farmers say it is very acceptable and will prove beneficial to the recently sown grain, of which I am told an unusually large amount has been seeded.

The McKenzie wagon road project, which had been languishing, has lately assumed a new and more promising shape, in the organization of another company of which Judge Stratton is President and Geo. H. Belden, Secretary—capital stock, $40,000. All seem to appreciate the positive and immediate advantage, especially to the Upper Willamette valley, of such a road, and wish the project success, and some few (it is feared too few) are doing something towards it. That route once in successful operation, Portland would send a large amount of "groceries" over it, to the Canyon City, Boise and Owyhee mines, while a large percentage of the cost of transporting heavier articles, such as flour, bacon, &c., would be saved, the distance from here to these mines being some what less, I believe, than from the Dalles. Cannot Portland spare a little capital to aid the enterprise? I venture to suggest that either the President or Secretary, if addressed on the subject, would furnish full information.

The Methodist Church, Rev. W. S. Lewis pastor, has been favored with quite a season of religious excitement in this place, holding three meetings per day. A large number of persons, including many substantial citizens and heads of families, have been added to the denomination in their usual terms of probation or trial. Rev. Mr. Driver, of Corvallis, and Rev. Mr. Hines, of Salem, have been present during the progress of the revival.

Your readers have been advised, doubtless, of the completion of the telegraph to this place. Mr. Haines, the Superintendent of the line, is here, and says he expects the whole line to be completed in fifteen or twenty days.

COMUS.

Washington's Birth-Day at Belgassi.

FRENCH PRAIRIE, Feb. 23, 1864.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The celebration of the Washington Literary Society at Belgassi was a complete success. The addresses, delivered by Hon. George H. Williams and Rev. T. H. Pearne were every way worthy the men and the occasion. The Aurora brass band, Prof. Rutjes, and Mr. Smith's choir discoursed patriotic music throughout the day. To their united efforts, in a great measure, is the Society indebted for the interest taken in the celebration. Mr. Pearne offered the following resolution, and made some well timed remarks as to the progress which the Society had made:

Resolved, That the Washington Literary Society from this day inscribed on its fixed list, and may its children's children rise and call it blessed.

Other resolutions thanking the speakers, the musicians, and the people generally for their good order, were offered, and after a hearty endorsement of them, the audience adjourned at 12 o'clock, midnight, to meet at the same place on the 22d of February, 1865.

The amount raised for the Sanitary Commission was $175 25 cash and $8 currency.

SPECTATOR.

GOOD FOR KENTUCKY.—A Provost Marshal in Kentucky, who had been a good deal crowded by men anxious for exemption, has been favored with the following note from a man who is as anxious to "go in" as the others are to keep out:

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec 17, 1863.

CAPT. ROBERT HAYS, Provost Marshal Eighth district, Loudon, Ky.—Dear Sir: I have seen your advertisement giving the people dealing exemption from the draft an opportunity to buy in their completa, &c. Now, Sir, I have never had the honor of your acquaintance, but I can refer you for the truth of what I am about to say to my worthy friend, James D. Foster, surgeon, and member of your honorable Board. My complaints are as follows, viz:

I have no broken limbs. I have no chronic diseases, such as "inflammatory rheumatism," "chronic inflammation of the stomach," "phthisic," "white swelling" &c. I am positive in either of these cases. I have kneed. I am not bandy-shanked. I am not knock-kneed. I have a bad teeth, and can bite off a cartridge. I stand straight on my pasterns joints. I have never been drilled in the manual of arms, and never been so fortunate as to be a member of the sympathizing party in Madison. I have no impediments in my speech. I am neither nigh-sighted, nor far-sighted. I can hear well. I can hear the ring of a quarter as well as the ring of a silver dollar. In short, I am sound in wind and limb. I am about 24 years old. I am a house carpenter, and have a wife (a good Union woman), and no children. I am a citizen of Madison County, Ky., from which you will get 230 soldiers. I am de bravest an only man who is no braver than I am. One of my legs is as long as the other, and both are long enough to run well. I am for the "stars and stripes" and the last "nigger or no nigger," especially "the last nigger." If you have a good pocket marked "U. S.," send it to me, for I am ready to bear it in defence of the Union. I am no freigner, and shall see all the papers that entitle me to go in.

WILLARD DAVIS.

A HEALTHFUL CONSCIOUSNESS.—The Richmond Examiner of December 19th appears to be coming to a true sense of the condition of the Confederacy. "We are fast drifting into self-contempt," it says—

"The adjective Confederate, as applied to the various articles necessary to the war, is quite the reverse of complimentary. Confederate coffee is bastard rye. Confederate paper is only fit for wrapping parcels. Confederate swords are so harmless as if they were made of lead. Confederate notes are treated as if they were no more valuable than candle-lighters."

When it shall add that the Confederacy itself is a stupendous counterfeit and humbug, it will have arrived at the whole truth.

WINTER SPORTS IN BOISE.—The Boise News of February 6th, contains the following account of a visit of the Sliding Club of Bannock City to the neighboring towns in the Boise Basin:

The Club left Bannock on Tuesday morning in one large sleigh, having in tow a white dozen of smaller craft, elegantly painted, with the name of each plainly registered on its side—the whole cavalcade being led by Mr. Wallace in a small cutter drawn by his two large Newfoundland dogs. About 11 o'clock the procession entered Centerville in triumphal style, and on invitation of Mr. Johnson,—President of the Centerville Club,—dined at the Orleans Restaurant. After an hour or two spent on the Centerville Coast in trials of speed, &c., the two Clubs joined and proceeded to Placerville, preceded by the dogs; and their numbers now being increased, their entrance into Placerville was even more imposing than that into the former city. Here they were met and kindly welcomed by Capt. Bledsoe—President of the C. C. B.—and invited to dine at the International Hotel the following day.

On Wednesday morning an hour or later made a race on the far-famed Flying Cloud of Placerville, against the Wide West of Bannock, for a wager of $50, to run 3 in 5. By some misunderstanding, one of the Judges left his post—the West declared winner by the remaining Judge. Three more heats were run—the West winning two and the Cloud one; the Bannock Club claimed the race and money, but it was denied on account of the absence of the Judge, and the stakes were drawn.

At one o'clock they all dined together, in pursuance of the invitation of the Placerville Club, at the International. After dinner, having during the day indulged in sliding to their hearts' content, they separated—the Bannocks having decided to accept an invitation from the citizens of Centerville, to remain one night in their city, slide on their coast, and attend a ball in the evening. Soon after their arrival in Centerville, a delegation from Placerville made their appearance with the Flying Cloud, and offered to run her against the Wide West on the Centerville Coast—one sled against the other. The track was illuminated along its entire length all night, and men were employed to smooth and sweep it so as to keep it in the very best of order. Something was kept up until 8 o'clock, Eli Hostick in the mean-time being thrown from a sled and badly hurt about the head and face. A committee from the Centerville Quadrille Club announced that the time had arrived for the dancing to begin, and all hands adjourned to the ball where, it is needless to say, everybody enjoyed themselves.

On Tuesday morning the race was made—the Coast being fairly lined with sleds of all descriptions. One called the French Frigate being particularly worthy of notice, as the fastest in the Basin, and capable of carrying 20 persons. About eight o'clock the Wide West and Flying Cloud came up for a 3 in 3, sled against sled. The Cloud was piloted by H. Bixby, of Placerville, and the West by Wm. Mullaly, of Bannock. The West got 20 feet the start, and was beaten 5 feet;—beat from offered two to one on the Cloud, with but few takers. Second heat, Cloud got 20 feet the start, the West closing on her slowly until halfway down the track, when she shot by like an arrow, and won the heat by 55 ft—no more two, to one betters. The Third heat was won by the West by several feet, and the race decided in her favor.

After the punishment of the usual amount of wagglefod, necessary and incident to such exciting events, the Placervillains and Bannocks—considered the worst tribes in the mountains—took leave of their Centerville friends and dispersed, after listening to a few appropriate remarks by the Presidents of the Bannock and Centerville Clubs, and "the celebrated world-renowned great North-American Fire-Fighting" tragedian, on behalf of the C. C. B. B.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon they entered this city, singing "Lo, the Conquering Hero Comes," Mr Mullaly sitting upon the Wide West and bearing a broom, which, we are informed, signifies that she scoops the Coast, and having in tow the veritable Flying Cloud about which we have heard and read so much, brought off as a trophy.

BUTLER ON THE PENINSULA.—Benjamin F. Butler may not be a great General. He is probably ignorant of the science of war, the details of engineering, gunnery, etc.; but his keen, incisive sense, rapid mastery of a situation, remarkable fertility of resource, as frequently displayed during the war, render him an invaluable man. Butler took possession of Baltimore without a blow, while the military men at Washington were forming strategical combinations for that purpose. Butler fixed the Government out of a perplexing fog on the negro question by pronouncing negro "property" contraband of war. While McClellan assured the President and the country that there were two hundred and forty thousand rebels at Manassas, with formidable fortifications, as an excuse for keeping the Army of the Potomac inactive, Butler, at the request of the Secretary of War, demonstrated by facts he procured that the enemy had not over seventy-five thousand men in front of Washington, which proved to be a close approximation to the truth. Parton gives a full account of this exposure of a swindle, and deplores the infatuation which prevented action upon it. The world knows how Butler, with the shadow of an army, tamed the most turbulent city of the South. The General, in his new Department, though the Government still refuses to give him the force he requires, seems likely to dispel another most obstinate delusion. It is understood that the War Department is making gigantic preparations for a final campaign, with the purpose of taking Richmond and ending the rebels from Virginia. But there seems to be a rooted conviction at Washington and in the public mind, planted at a time when our armies were virtually under the control of political conspirators, that an army cannot operate on the Peninsula until spring, and therefore the rebels are accorded ample time to gather up their resources for a desperate struggle. One would suppose that it had been demonstrated in 1862 that the wet weather of spring renders that season the most unfavorable for operations between Yorktown and the marshes of the Chickahominy, while, if the winter be unusually severe in that region, as the present one is, the roads are likely to be frozen and practicable for artillery. General Butler's recent movement, which seems to have been in concert with the Army of the Potomac, shows what sort of marching may be done on the Peninsula in February. Had he possessed a force of fifty thousand men, instead of five or six thousand, Richmond might have been taken while Lee was engaged in checking the advance of the Army of the Potomac. The fright of the rebels at the approach of a few regiments indicates that they have little confidence in the fortifications of which so much has been written. If this movement should serve to hasten the concentration of an army on the Peninsula and precipitate decisive operations in Virginia, to General Butler must be awarded the credit of rendering another substantial service to the cause, and one which will hasten the conclusion of the war.—Sew Union.

PROFOUND IGNORANCE OF THE "POOR WHITE TRASH" IN THE SOUTH.—Capt. Randolph, of the 3d (colored) South Carolina Volunteers, relates a characteristic story of a prisoner of war, exemplifying the sublime ignorance in which the poor, non-slaveholding whites of the South are stepped:

Last February, when the United States troops penetrated to Jacksonville, Fla., some "Confederate" soldiers were captured. A motley crew they were, whose picturesque variety of raggedness bore here and there some indications of sim at military style, but nothing of what could be called "uniform." Two men claimed exemption from capture as being civilians. One of the two owned to having been impressed into the Confederate army, but alleged that he had got his discharge and was then a civilian. "How long were you a soldier?" asked Captain Randolph. "Three years," replied the prisoner. "The Confederate army has been three years in the field—eh?" asked the Captain. "No," answered the "cracker," "but I was in the State of Florida service part of the time." "How long were you in soldier for Florida?" "Two years," said the ex-conscript. "And how long has this war been going forward?" asks the Captain again. "Well, I suppose going on fifteen years," replied the prisoner. "Are you sure of that?" his captor inquires. "Now, I hain't kept no strict tally," the Floridian veteran answers; "but think it's 'bout that." "Now, we've been fought," the burned Africanists a darned sight longer time 'n that; well—'bout's long's I kin remember."

LEE'S ENCAMPMENT.—This famous "camping place" is situated in the Blue Mountains, near the center of that picturesque route from Umatilla Reservation to La Grande. A clear stream of the purest mountain water courses by it, that has quenched the parching thirst of many a weary traveler, and has tended to make the location somewhat historical, for many years past. In the settlement of the upper country this place has not been overlooked. Its superior natural advantages have been accepted and improved upon, and under the management of Meacham & Brother is as popular to the "man of means" as a stopping place, as it was in former years to the "poor emigrant."

NEW LAMP STORE.—Crandall & Towle, late of San Francisco, have established a new oil and lamp store, at No. 89 First street, in this city. Their stock was recently selected in New York, and from a partial examination of samples and prices, we must say they are very reasonable. See advertisement and give them a call.

THE steamer Vancouver took her freight from Couch's wharf yesterday, consisting principally of oats for the Quartermaster's department.

SUPPOSED WRECK.—The schooner Gull is lying a little above Astoria in such a shape as to give currency to a report that she was a wreck.

THE steamer John H. Couch arrived from Astoria at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening with a number of passengers, bound for the mines.

FLOUR AND FEED continue in ... quantities by the steamers Sendor and River, daily; 100 tons arrived yesterday.

[COMMUNICATION.]

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The last Thursday in February—the 25th—had been designated, for several years, as a day of united prayer for our American Colleges and other institutions of learning, that the teachers may be imbued with wisdom from God, and sustained in their arduous efforts to implant sound moral principles in the hearts of their pupils, while instructing their minds, and that the youth, gathered in our schools, may receive the great truth that "the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and a good understanding have all they that do his commandments," and thus be eminently fitted for the responsibilities, devolving upon citizens of the "Great Republic."

We hope that these objects will be remembered at all the Thursday eve prayer meetings. COM.

The Jolly Old Pedagogue.

'Twas a jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
Tall, and slender, and sallow, and dry,
His form was bent and his gait was slow,
His long, thin hair was as white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye;
And he sang merry oldels, as he went to bed,
"Let us be happy down here below;
The living should live though the dead be dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He taught his scholars the rule of three,
Writing, and reading, and history, too;
He took the little ones up on his knee,
For a kind old heart in his breast had he.
And the wants of the littlest child he knew;
"Learn while you're young," he often said,
"There's much to enjoy down here below;
Life for the living, and rest for the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

With the stupidest boy he was kind and cool,
Speaking only in gentlest tones;
The rod was hardly known in his school—
Whipping to him was a barbarous rule
And so hard work for his poor old bones:
Beside, it was painful, he sometimes said,
"We should make life pleasant, down here below,
The living need charity more than the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He lived in the house by the hawthorn lane,
With rose and woodbine over the door;
His room was quiet, and neat, and plain,
But a spirit of comfort there held reign
And made him forget he was old and poor;
"I need so little," he often said;
"And my friends and relatives here below,
Won't litigate over me when I am dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

But the pleasantest time that he had, of all,
Were the sociable hours he used to pass,
With his chair tipped back to a neighbor's wall,
Making an unconcerned call,
Over a pipe and a friendly glass;
This was the finest pleasure, he said,
Of the many he tasted here below;
"Who has no cronies had better be dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

Then the jolly old pedagogue's wrinkled face
Melted all over in sunshiny smiles;
He stirred his glass with an old school grace,
Chuckled, and sipped, and patted his knees,
Till the house grew merry from cellar to tiles;
"I'm a pretty old man," he gently said,
"I have lingered a long time here below;
But my heart is fresh, if my youth is dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He smoked his pipe in the balmy air
Until his old pedagogue fancy ran riot,
And feeling the kisses he smiled, and said
"I was a glorious world, down here below;
"The waits for happiness till we are dead!"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He sat at the door, one midsummer night,
After the sun had sunk in the West,
And the lingering beams of golden light
Made his kindly old face look warm and bright,
While the odorous night-wind whispered, "Rest!"
Gently, gently he bowed his head;
There were angels waiting for him, I know—
He was sure of happiness, living or dead,
The jolly old pedagogue, long ago!

Gaiety in a Basement.

BEAU HACKETT AT THE GOVERNORS' DINNER.

EDITOR POST:—I have no hesitation in saying that I have always been curious to see a governor dine. It seems to me that I read in the Arabian Nights, or one of Beadle's Dime Novels, when I was quite a boy, that governors always masticate their food with the molars, instead of the bicuspids; and further, that they carve meats with both hands.

Having read a notice published that there was to be a governors' dinner in the city, I congratulated myself that now, for the first time in the whole course of my life, I would have an opportunity of testing the truth of what I had seen stated. I rejoiced at the circumstance; in fact, I felt considerable. But what was my horror, (if your imagination is equal to the task) on learning that the dinner was to be held in Bryan Hall. Since the opening of Northwestern Fair I have shunned Bryan Hall as I would the gates of that place of nine-tenths of the race, of which I am a humble representative, are most particularly fabulous for shunning.

I settled down quietly, and thought no more of the affair until I saw it stated that the tables would be waited upon by flockings and short dresses and white—not the stripes, but the dresses—altogether. If there was anything in the world that I loved to see more than anything else it was young ladies with short dresses on. I have either been Foxe's Book of Martyrs or a programme, that fifty young ladies with short dresses on are fascinating, and I have been anxious to know whether it was so or not. So I made up my mind that I would be present at the governors' dinner, if it was in Bryan Hall or a slaughter pen.

The announcement that nobody would be admitted but governors, senators, congressmen and city officers, didn't trouble me a bit. I have walked over too many difficulties like that to suffer any uneasiness on account of it. At six o'clock, sharp, I marched up to the door and demanded admission. He asked me who I was, and I told him I was a friend of Washoe. (The pronunciation of my name is equivalent to a sneeze.) Doorkeeper said crossly, that governors of territories were not admitted. Then I felt badly, and thought I would tell him I had made a mistake; I was governor of something else. On reconsidering the matter, I thought I wouldn't. I commenced arguing the danger of letting State officials, and told him that if I was identified by identity, I would pay him half a dollar. But he said nobody was admitted without a ticket. As a refutation of this last statement, I cited those familiar lines—

"This world is all a fleeting show—
No reserved seats."

That's what it is in my book, but he could not see it.

I thought the matter over and concluded the best plan was to disguise myself as a senator. So I went and got a suit of seedy clothes and a dirty collar, came back sanguine; told the doorkeeper I was a senator, and he said I must come with the Senators' delegation. Stumped again. I knew I was a goner if I ever fell in with a delegation, and determined not to do it.

Another happy thought struck me. I would disguise myself as a congressman—perhaps the congressmen would not come in a body, and I would be all right. Full of never-fading hope, I rushed to a favorite saloon and asked the proprietor what he would charge to put me under the influence of intoxicating beverages. Saloon keeper said he must have two days to consider, as he would have to order an extra supply from the distilleries. That was consoling. The dinner would begin in twenty minutes, and he talked to me about two days for consideration. I left him immediately, and sought a more congenial locality, where there was a more correct estimate of my capacity, and where I was thoroughly disguised in just sixteen minutes, though I only breathed fifteen times during the process. I went back to the hall, believing that I represented the whole United States and part of the Confederacy. The passage to the hall was like a treadmill—a continual ascent.

I reached the door after considerable trouble in trying to keep the floor from going between me and the ceiling, and told the keeper I was a congressman. He glanced at me casually, and remarked that there were too many representatives from my district in the hall already; I had n't the least idea what he meant, but I saw there was no chance for me, and resolved to go home disgusted. In seeking my way out I stumbled into the 'tiring room, where the young ladies had arrayed themselves in short dresses and white stockings. How I ever got in there is an inexplicable mystery, but there was one full set of harness still unoccupied, and in less time than a flash of lightning I was in it. It was a perfect fit—couldn't have suited me better if it had been an attack of the measles. I put on the stockings, and split my pocket handkerchief for strings to tie them with; then I laid the dress on the floor and crawled into it; did it just as easy as any thing could be done; then I jammed on the Greek cap and sailed down to the hall. Nobody interrupted me that time; doorkeepers waved their hands majestically, and I was admitted.

And I saw the governors eat!

I had to perform the duties of a waiting-maid, of course, and I did, though I was still so much disguised that I couldn't tell whether the stripes on the ladies' dresses ran up or down. The waiting-maids were organized into a corps under the direction of a chieftess, and I went to her for instructions. She told me to "go round." That was instructions enough for anybody, and I flew round. I snatched up a plate of oyster soup, and carried it to one of the governors, and told him it was ready. superior—try it." He said he was through with soup an hour ago. I tried to take the plate away rapidly, and spilt the contents on his shirt-bosom. He begged my pardon, and I asked him why in thunder he didn't have his shirt bosom the color of oyster soup, and then it wouldn't show? Young lady on the opposite side said "Oh, my!" and I told her to shut up. I could run the governors myself, I thought. I went and got a roast pig, and slammed it down before a bright, particular governor. "Pitch in, guv," said I; "go the whole hog." He went. A tall lady and said I was a horrid young woman. I thought maybe I was, and so I put one foot on a table till I could contemplate the shape of my understanding. A dozen delicate little things jumped at me all at once, and one my soft down in a jiffy. I compared myself with others, and found I was fair to middling. Most of the dresses were short at both ends, high below and low above. Mine was a beauty, and I knew it.

"In freckled beauty waited by me,"

I went to a man who was a little timid—he was a congressman in his first term—and asked him if he had any tobacco about him. He took a double-barreled stare at me and left abruptly, without his hat, I believe.

I began to attract universal attention. I was becoming a lioness—one that everybody was afraid of. The governors shuddered every time I went near them. I said to the one with the oyster soup in his bosom, "will your excellency excellency have something else?" "Oh dear, no," said he, "you wait on somebody else." I thought I would test him further, so I said, "old chap, will you go out and take something?" A bombshell would n't have scattered the girls around the table quicker than that remark did.

I felt proud to know that I was becoming a plague. Everybody complained of me. Every time I went into the cook room my companions said I was the most affectionate woman they ever saw, because I reached around me with both arms whenever I wanted sugar or a tea-cup.

A young lady in plain dress came into the hall whining that some one had stolen her costume. I smelt rat—fed—a mouse if you please. Concluded I ought to go home immediately. Heard or say she should know it if she should see it. Then I knew I would go home immediately. I wanted to go to the 'tiring room much, but couldn't do it without passing the young woman with plain dress on. I left through a back door, and am satisfied. I left on the governors; saw the governors I went home and got a new suit, and

I am, happily,

IDLE GIRLS.—The number of idle, useless girls in all our cities seems to be steadily increasing. They lounge or sleep through the mornings, parade the streets in the afternoons, and assemble in frivolous companies of their own and the other sex to pass away their evenings. What a store of unhappiness for themselves and others are they laying up for the coming time, when real duties and high responsibilities shall be thoroughly assumed! They are skilled in no domestic duties—nay, they despise them—have no habits of industry nor taste for the useful. What will they be as wives and mothers? Alas for their husbands and children, and alas for themselves!

QUAKER LINGO.—This is me and mine to thee and thine. I wish when thou and thine come to see me and mine, that me and mine will treat thee and thine as kindly as thee and thine have treated me and mine.

I wish thee and thy folks loved me and my folks as well as me and my folks love thee and thy folks. For sure, there never was folks since folks was folks, that ever loved folks half so well as me and my folks love thee and thy folks.

In consequence of illegible writing, printers sometimes sadly pervert the author's meaning. A very popular authoress, speaking of her heroine as "enjoying more indulgences than usually fall to the lot of her sex," wrote the sentence so badly that it appeared as—"usually fall to the lot of horses."

And will positively prevent

THE

NO ALCOHOL

They will cure the above diseases,

INDUCED to the use of Hoofland's German Bitters by the use of ardent spirits, in the form of Cordials, made on expensive drugs, and extracts of roots and herbs, divested of all their medicinal properties. These Bitters are entirely free from alcohol in any form, the only solvent employed being pure Old Jamaica Spirit and Loaf Sugar, the purity and excellence of which are well known. In order to get at the medicinal virtues of the roots and herbs from which these Bitters are made, requires a solvent that will readily dissolve all their medicinal properties, and this solvent is found to be the pure old Jamaica Spirit, as it is the only one that will do it. Hence the necessity of using it in preference to any other. Those who object to the use of alcohol as a beverage, can use these Bitters without being intoxicated, as the amount contained in a dose is not sufficient to intoxicate, but is beneficial, as it assists digestion.

Hoofland's

Are not a new and untried remedy, but have been before the public for more than thirty years, during which time they have performed many wonderful cures, and have established a reputation unequalled by any other remedy in the United States, or any other country. They have received the unqualified approbation of the Clergy, Statesmen, Judges, Physicians, Editors, and others, who have used them in their families, or prescribed them in their practice.

From Rev. J. New

Although I do not usually recommend Medicines, I have been induced to make an exception in favor of Hoofland's German Bitters, from the fact that I have used them in my family, and have found them to be all that they are represented. I do this with the more confidence because I have been personally acquainted with the author of them for many years, and have no hesitation in saying that he is a man fully worthy of confidence, and that he will not put forth any statement respecting the virtues of his medicines that will not be fully realized by those who use them. Yours truly,

Rev. J. New

We call particular attention to the well authenticated [illegible] whose life, to use his own words, is in the Bitters:"

Messrs. Jones & Evans—Hoofland's German Bitters have taken in this city. It is vegetable, some of whose properties are fully cognizant of all the ingredients and have been for the last twenty years a celebrated battle-ground of Captain B. P. Hoofland upon my arrival in this city in November last with a chill and fever, seventy two days in the month of January, 1863, I was then removed from the city on board the steamer Sidney, and landed on the 28th of January, 1863, about as low as one could be and live. For a week or more I could not retain anything, and if I did force myself to eat it was immediately thrown up again.

I could not even keep a physician, as my stomach would not bear the medicine he administered. Life could not last under the circumstances long. Accordingly, the physicians who had been unsuccessfully, to my dread Arches, frankly told me that I could not live, and advised me to see a friend in disposition of my limited acquaintance who visited me. Steinbrenner, of Sixth, below Arch, in the forlorn hope, to try some of Hoofland's German Bitters. From the first dose I took a bottle. From the time I began to take the bitters I gloomy shadow of death receded. Good for it, getting better every day. I took three bottles, I have gained ten pounds, and am entirely restored to health. I therefore feel it my duty to recommend these Bitters to all persons afflicted with debility, and to those whom I have heard spoken highly of. Gentlemen, I am a loyal Virginian. Fredericksburg, Va. To your immediate vicinity of life which has taken from me. Confident that if those afflicted will only give your Bitters a fair trial, they will be restored to health, I remain, gentlemen, yours, with gratitude and respect,
